

This Week in Washington

A lot of news is being made in Washington these days

And, it is news you can use! Each week, legislative action, new federal regulations, personnel changes, and other events in the nation's capital have an impact on human service policy and practice. Our staff is paying attention to the important issues, and we're sharing it with you in This Week in Washington. This weekly e-newsletter includes everything the human service administrator needs to know from the capital.

You can get the latest news in human service programs and policy even quicker by subscribing online. You'll receive an instant e-mail notification when This Week in Washington is posted online. All you need to do is give us your e-mail address and password.
